This year, the Alliance Française de Kansas City is organizing its first French Film Festival. Establishing a French film festival emerged as a natural next step for us – one designed to bring our entire public together while further extending our cultural reach. For this inaugural edition, our theme is: “That Which Unites Us.”

The films we have chosen offer a different perspective—one of hope, nuance, and reconciliation—inviting audiences to pause, and rediscover the power of shared emotion and dialogue in the collective experience of the movie theater.

Through a curated selection of recent feature-length and short films from across the francophone world, the festival highlights stories that celebrate diversity, foster understanding between peoples, and affirm that human connection and renewal remain possible.
